IRISH IMMIGRATION.—The Glenswilly, one of Mr. Marshall's bounty ships, that arrived from London and Plymouth so recently as the 11th March, 1841, had on board about 310 emigrants, who, as the vessel had sailed from an English port, are all entered, of course, in the Government Lists, I mean the Custom House Returns, as natives of England. But the fact is, that there was scarcely an Englishman on board, in the capacity of a bounty emigrant; the whole number having been collected from the South and West of Ireland, and carried over, like so many pigs, by the Cork and Dublin steam-boats, to meet the Glenswilly in Plymouth Sound; the proportion of Protestants to Roman Catholics by that vessel, as well as by another of Mr. Marshall's ships, in reference to which I have been enabled to ascertain the fact from indisputable authority, having been one only for every eighteen! A large proportion of this valuable accession, forsooth, to the intellectual, moral, and religious character of this unfortunate Colony, were from the county of Tipperary, the most infamous county in all Ireland for deeds of violence and blood; not fewer than three of these hopefuls as was credibly reported, having been concerned in a murder in their native land ! The whole corps consisted of persons in the most abject poverty, and in the lowest stage of moral de- basement. The following is a descriptive list of the bounty emigrants per the ship Portland, the vessel by which I returned to the Colony, and which arrived in Sydney the same day as the Glenswilly. The Portland was chartered by Messrs. Carter and Bonus, a Bounty Emigration house in London, connected with a house in Sydney, and it seems she was the sixth vessel that had been dispatched by the charterers during the past year. The number of unmarried men on board the Portland was forty-three, of whom only seven were Englishmen, although the vessel sailed from London and Plymouth, two English ports. The Englishmen were all Protestants, chiefly from Somersetshire, and all, but one or two, under special engagement to a Colonial proprietor; for Englishmen of character, it seems, cannot be got for these bounty ships under the existing system of management. The rest of the unmarried men (thirty-six) were all Irishmen, of whom thirteen, including a considerable number from the north of Ireland, under special engagement to a Colonial proprietor, were Protestants, the remaining twenty-three being Roman Catholics ! The number of unmarried female immigrants per the Portland was twenty-nine, of whom there was only one from England, and that one had not come out of her own accord either, but had been sent for through the agents of the vessel by her relatives in Sydney. The rest were all from Ireland, and almost exclusively from the city of Cork and Limerick. Five of the whole number, including the one from England, were Protestants, twenty-four were Roman Catholics! The number of married families was thirty-three, of who only two were from England; the remainder, thirty- one, being all from Ireland. The English families were both Protestant. Of the Irish, six were Protestants chiefly from the north of Ireland, who had previously to their embarkation been engaged for an extensive proprietor in the district of Bathurst; the remaining twenty-five being Roman Catholics. The gross number of Roman Catholic bounty immigrants, young and old, per the Portland, was 152, or including those in the intermediate berth, 159, while that of the Protestants was only fifty-eight.—Dr. Lang's Question of Questions.

ALLEGED SUICIDE An inquest was held by the District Coroner (Mr. S. L. Cox), coroner on Sunday at Cooksvale Creek touching the death of James Hogan, whose death was reported to the police on 2nd inst. The following is a summary of the evidence taken: Sgt Beck, stationed at Tuena, disposed that Wm Hogan, brother of deceased, told him on October 2 that 'James (deceased) died yesterday (1st inst) at his residence, Cookvale, Cookvale Creek, about 22 miles from Crookwell NSW; believed he has taken poison'; witness visited the place on 3rd inst and saw the body of deceased lying on the bed full dressed, except for hat and boots; there was blood on the mouth, and death appeared to have taken place about 48 hours previously; there were no marks of violence; found a letter (produced) which read as follows: 'Cooksvale Creek, I did it myself, no one has any hand in it; I had nothing to do with the crime, which I have heard people are going to swear lies about against me, so I won't give them the chance. Goodbye friends, not enemies. James Hogan.' Also found another letter signed 'P M

Frost' addressed James Hogan, Esq, in respect of some sheep; other articles (produced were also found; a bottle labelled 'strychnine' was taken by Constable Pearce from the right hand pocket and contained about a teaspoonful of some substance like strychnine, within two ft of the body, a matchbox (produced) was found containing a small quantity of some white powder; a cup (produced) on the table in an adjoining room appeared to have recently contained some liquid, witness was shown a small quantity of what looked like strychnine crystals (proposed); saw James Hogan alive on Sept 24, and showed him the dead body of a child, the subject of an inquest pending, and he denied ever having seen the body before; deceased then made a statement in which he stated that on September 17 at about sundown, he had tea with his mother and Mary McCormack and left about dark for his own residence (a quarter mile away), and did not leave again that night; he denied seeing Mary McCormack after dark or any more that night, nor till breakfast next morning at his mother's; he had no conversation with her since; never saw the child before; witness, continuing, said Mary McCormack was arrested on Sept 25 on a charge of the murder of the infant referred to and was at present in custody. Ellen Jane McCormack, a widow, residing at Cartwright's Creek, a quarter mile distant, deposed to seeing deceased on 1st inst at 5 pm at his mother's; he said then he would have to go and get his clothes ready to go to the inquest at Crookwell NSW

Next day; he said he knew nothing about the inquest, nor whose body it was; he told his mother he would not be long, and left in the direction of his hut; about two hours after his mother's request witness went to deceased's residence; heard noises outside the hut as of someone moaning; walked in and struck a match and saw deceased lying on his back on the bed, seeming very ill; he said he had not taken poison, but had a pain in his belly; he struggled but was conscious and asked witness not to leave him; as he continued to get worse, witness again said he would go for his mother, and at deceased's request witness put out the light; then went and told his mother, she believed her son was poisoned, an they both went back; deceased admitted to his mother taking strychnine poison, because he was in trouble, and asked, 'Where is my little boy?'

He told his mother there was a piece of paper in his pocket for her, he then said 'Good-bye, mother', and died in about four minutes; witness saw some poison about the house on the night of deceased's death, and pointed it out to the doctor and police; saw no one about the house that night except his mother and witness; deceased lived in the house by himself and used jam and strychnine for poisoning rabbits; heard him say something about the body of a baby being found on the place lately; he showed witness the spot; on the way he said he would have killed himself two or three days before if he had an easy way; he said it was an awful shame for the child to be put where it was; never saw deceased with her daughter, Mary McCormack, since she had her first child; James Hogan was the father of the first child a little boy who is now living; after deceased died his mother and witness locked up the place after throwing a sheet over the body; besides that it would not touched. Ellen Hogan, mother of deceased, gave corroborative evidence; she said her son was 35 years of age, single, a native of Cooksvale, and had land; she owned the sheep on the place; he left no will, she knew of no reason why her son would commit suicide. Wm Hogan (brother) deposed that the writing in the letter (produced), and the signature were in the handwriting of his brother, James Hogan, the deceased; deceased had six hundred acres, and land, worth about five hundred pounds; also six hundred and thirty sheep on shares with his mother; deceased left no will and his life was not insured. Dr Conroy, Government medical officer for this district, deposed to making a post mortem examination of the body of deceased at Cooksvale on Sunday, and from what he saw (both internally and externally), and from the evidence of the other witnesses, he was of the opinion that the cause of death was strychnine poisoning. The coroner returned a verdict in accordance with the medical testimony. #### William Treacy Convict Records

Age 22 years, education reads and writes, Religion Roman Catholic. Single status, Native place County Wicklow, trade shoemaker - good. He was tried at County Kildare 12 July 1834 and sentence to life, he had no former convictions, and his height was 5 ' 4 1/2". His complexion was dark with brown hair, grey eyes and he had a small, mole on the side of his neck. His ticket of leave was granted 1843 number 2959 and he received his conditional pardon 1853 number 132. Four of Williams's country men were also sentence at the same sittings, and sent on the "Lady McNaughton" On arrival William Tracy was aged 22 years, so his birth is about c1812.

The White-boys were created as a result of agrarian unrest. The first recorded general uprising of the peasants was in 1761 and known as the White-boy conspiracy. It first appeared in Limerick then spread through Munster, Connacht and Leinster Provinces.

The White-Boy and agrarian unrest was directly caused by grievances regarding enclosure of common acreage, forced labor, employment, rack rents and the tithes (Catholics had to pay a tithe to the Church of Ireland, as well as what they paid to their own Church) - grievances for which they had no redress in courts of law. Because Father Nicholas Sheehy had expressed sympathy for the peasants who were being evicted, he was arrested on trumped up charges and then hung, drawn and quartered in Clonmel in 1766. He is buried in Shandraghan and his through his death he became the patron saint of later generations of White-boys.

Due to fear of the ascendancy a bill in 1762 to allow Catholics to take mortgages against their land was defeated and instead the leaders of militant protestant ascendancy charged the White-boys with a popish rebellion instigated by the French.

If reform of the tithe and land system been allowed at this time, Irish history would be been vastly altered. Instead in 1766 the first act against White-boys was passed.

They were called White-boys because they wore white shirts on the outside of their clothes as a disguise. Their tactics were brutal but rarely was murder committed. The White-boys were the first Tenant's Protection Society and Agricultural Laborers Union, they did establish a code of agrarian solidarity which was generally observed.

The White-boys never advanced far beyond a self contained secret organization. But between 1761 to 1778 the landlords and the authorities waged war on the White-boys. Suspects were hung. Even with much persecution the groups would spring up in another area.

Groups in the Province of Ulster also were started by Protestant peasantry, but they were met with less harshly than the White-boys. They were the Oakboys in Monaghan, which spread into Tyrone and Armagh, they were revolting against forced labor for the repair and upkeep of the roads. Catholics and Protestants joined together but were defeated in Armagh during a bloody battle.

The Steelboys (1762) were Protestants of Antrim and Down who resisted fines for the renewal of tenancies, rack rents, tithes and to attempts to introduce grass farming.

In the end the landlords proved to be the strongest and drove most of the protestors to emigrate.

During the 1800s the customary protection of tenants was eliminated and replaced with yearly tenancies, or simple tenancies-at-will. Just about all the agricultural population, who were of occupying owners, became EVICTABLE, and liable to increases of rent imposed as punishments for any improvements they made to their land (which actually wasn't legally their land, but the landlords). It was during these conditions that Whiteboyism rose again, now known as Ribbonism.

If the tenant "erected fences, made drains, cleared, manured and worked up the soil, the tenant believed he had the right to dispose of these improvements at will; to sell his right in them if he wished to leave; to bequeath them to his children; or at the least, to occupy his holding without interference so long as he paid the quit-rent custom decreed. The "right" of the owner to raise the rent on him, or to eject him at will, still more to confiscate his improvements-these common-places of "Free Trade in Land" were to the Irish tenant's abominations which negated all right."

This was the climate in the 1800s that helped create the Land League to fight for land reform for the tenant. Whiteboyism was established as Ribbonism.

The term Leveller is from the Cromwellian period when King Charles was executed. It refers to many of the members of the "New Model Army". Getting rid of the monarch was not sufficient for them.

They wanted to get rid of all royalty and destroy even the power of the parsons, thus they wanted a political Levelling, some even wanted an economic Levelling. Cromwell and Parliament promised the English Levellers they would receive land in Ireland taken from the Irish Royalists." The information was taken from several different sources among them:

WILLIAM TRACEY:

William Treacy received a life sentence for being in possession of a firearm, tried at County Kildare, Ireland 12 July 1834, (he was a White-boy) he was transported from Dublin aboard the "Lady McNaughton" Arrived on the 26.10.1835. He was described as 5'4" inches tall, dark brown hair, with grey eyes. He was able to read and write, he was single and Roman Catholic.

He went into service of Sir. Thomas Livingstone Mitchell, the Surveyor- General he was sent to 'Clifton' at Picton. William was put in charge of droving stock for Mitchell from Sydney area through Bathurst to Big Meadow. Thomas Mitchell's also owned a large estate in Laggan district, which stretched from Laggan to Limerick and the 'Big Meadow'. He sent William to manage "Big Meadow" until the c1840's. He have been employed as a shoemaker by trade before he was sentenced.

While he was working at "Clifton" he met Mr. and Mrs. Lachlan Morrison who had were also working on the property with their children, the Morrison's had came out on the 'William Nichol' from Isle of Skye during the highland clearances. Lachlan died 7 April 1840 and on 9 September 1841 a son, James Tracey, was born to William Tracey and Mary Morrison, nee Grant, the widow of Lachlan Morrison (vide Baptism certificate of James Tracey, Campbelltown Shire. There is no evidence of any marriage between Mary Morrison, nee Grant and William Tracey exists.

On James Tracey's death certificate it shows his mothers maiden name as "Mary Grant". Mrs. Morrison later married a John Richard Brien, and was possibly living in Monks Gully, with her family of Morrison and James Tracey, this would account for the confusion that surrounded the identity of James Tracey. He was called variously 'Jimmy Brien, wasn't he Morrison?' 'He used to live with Granny Brien and he was a bit of a mystery, a stray".

When John Mills who came to Sydney on the ship "Glenswilly" as bounty immigrants bringing with him his wife and four children, he came to the district and took over the holding from William. William Treacy then moved to Deep Creek at Limerick and married Eliza Mills, a daughter of John Mills. The celebrant was Rev. B Walsh, witnesses Patrick and Brigit Connor. This union was to produce thirteen children. William Treacy took up three, thirty acre blocks of land, which is still held by some of the Treacy family today. William was bedridden for several years before his death and Eliza suffered a hip operation at 70-years which left her with a permanent limp.

STANLEY TREACY

Stanley Treacy was born 1899 he often related to me the story of his involvement with the dressed timber used to build the extensions to his parent's (William and Catherine) home at Deep Creek, Limerick. Luke Treacy, Stan's uncle and son of William and Eliza (Mills) owned one of the bullock teams in the limerick area. In approximately 1907, when Stan was eight years old he accompanied his Uncle Luke, from Limerick to Crookwell railway yards, there they took possession of dressed timber, which had been transported by rail from a sawmill in Goulburn.

Once there timber had been loaded on Luke's wagon, Luke and Stan made there way to Laggan. As evening was drawing in, the bullock team along with Luke and Stan were to spend the night camped at Laggan. The team was unyoked watered and put to graze. Luke went to quench his thirst at the Laggan pub, Stan to settle in for the night under the wagon.

Next morning saw Luke and Stan along with a load of timber on the road to Limerick. It seems Luke was one to be indiscriminate with the use of the whip and would lay it on the beast or anyone who may have been in whip range. Perhaps Stan may have bee in range on several occasions.

The timber arrived at "Deep Creek" in due course, where four room as and a verandah was built by Stan's older brothers, Ernest and Phillip.

I remember the building well, there were three bedrooms one of which was used by William and Catherine, one for their daughter Celie slept, a guest room and a sitting room. Hanging on the walls of the sitting room were the lovely large photographs of William and Catherine also three of the girls of the family, Grace (Dolly), Agatha (Ag), and May.

My sister Joy and I would snare the large double bed with Celie whenever we stayed there, with the use of the hurricane lamp to see our way to bed of an evening during the 30's and 40's

This section of William and Catherine's home was dismantled in early 1960.

WILLIAM TREACY:

William was named after his father William Treacy who arrived in Australia on the Lady McNaughtan on the 26 October 1835 from County Wicklow after a trial in Kildare on the 2 July 1834 on a "firearms" offence. He went into service of Major Thomas Mitchell, the Surveyor General who owned a large estate at Laggan district. He managed "Big Meadow" until 1840, when John Mills came to the district and took over the holding. William Treacy moved to Deep Creek at Limerick and married a daughter of John Mills. On arrival William Treacy was aged 22, so his birth is c1813; his marriage to Eliza Mills was in 1851 at Kangaloola; his death was recorded at Deep Creek, Limerick, 1888.

Obituary

We regret to record the death of the age of thirty-six years, of Mrs. John Lynam of Peelwood, which took place at Laggan on Saturday last under sad circumstances, the immediate cause of death being failure of the heart's action. Deceased had been in indifferent health and was on her way to Crookwell NSW when she was compelled to take to her bed at Mrs. Cummins' hotel. Dr. Romeo was brought out, but held out no hope. Deceased was a daughter of Mr. W. Treacey, of Deep Creek, Tuena Road, and leaves a husband and a family of young children to mourn their loss. Much sympathy is expressed for the bereaved family. The funeral took place yesterday, the remains being interred in the Laggan cemetery, whither they were followed by a large concourse of friends and sympathisers. The Rev. Fr. Kennedy officiated at the grave, and the funeral arrangements were carried out by Mess Spiers and Kennedy.

ETHEL MAUDE PAGETT:

My grandmother, Ethel Maude McDonald nee Pagett was tiny and had one shoulder blade which had been broken when she was a youth, which protruded, giving her a slightly stooped appearance. She was always known as Maude or Nanna Maude.

She played the piano beautifully by ear and was very kind to us, buzzing around busily, chatting away on our regular Sunday visits. She had long white hair which she wore up and my sister and I loved to brush her hair at night and plait it for her before bedtime. We were at the time, wild rambunctious fatherless kids and must have been a sore trial to her. Thos was in the period when they left the farm at Limerick and moved into Crookwell NSW. The farm was sold to my cousin Leo McDonald, whose wife and daughter Leona, still live there. After Nanna died, Grandpa Jim moved to his daughter's home in Sydney until his death. My recollection is that they are both buried at Laggan, as is my father.

MAXWELL STANLEY FENTON:

Obituary
Coach dies on Field

The 35-year old coach of the Queanbeyan men's under 18 hockey team collapsed and died on the field during a match on Saturday.

Maxwell Stanley Fenton was playing, as usual, with his team at Blundell Park when he died. It is understood that it was Mr. Fenton's second game of the day.

Always a keen hockey player, Max had played hockey in the Crookwell NSW district as a young man, representing NSW with a Colts team.

He came to Queanbeyan about four years ago and started playing hockey with the Woden Valley Club with some success.

In 1976 he was one of the forces behind the revival of the Queanbeyan Hockey Club, captioning the B3 team which one the premierships in that year. Last year he played in the B1 grade but this year his great interest was in forming and promoting the under 18 team so that the club the club could attract young players. It was with this team that he died.

For the past three years Max had worked at the Royal Hotel Bottle Shop and had many friends in the town and district. He was the son of Mr. Stan Fenton and the late Phyllis Fenton and a brother of Shirley, Joyce, Greg, Colin and Sue. A service is to be held at St. Paul's Church at Peelwood at 10.30 am tomorrow followed by interment in the Peelwood Cemetery.
