“JAVA”

Captain John Todd

Surgeon Robert Dixon kept a Medical and Surgical Journal from 30 June to 3 December 1833.

Two hundred convicts were hurriedly embarked on the Java at the Cove of Cork on 22nd July. At the same time four free settlers - John McNamara, Michael McNamara, Patrick McNamara and John McNamara. Six military convicts were also embarked. Five of them were Robert Deighton, Michael Fox, James Fraser, Hugh McQuiggan and Edward Standford.

They departed from Cork on 24th July only two days after embarkation.

Three of the convicts were already ill. John Sullivan a boy of thirteen was also unhealthy but rallied and was eventually landed in a healthy state although still delicate. Surgeon Dixon attributed the cause of so many bowel complaints during the voyage to the sudden change from dry heat to cold moisture and choking perspiration. He thought them ill fed compared to English prisoners and therefore unable to withstand the long passage and changes of climate. There were several deaths - Thomas Adams age 15 died on 17 October; Patrick Burke on 8th October; Robert Polly age 19 on 11 October; James Crawley age 19 on 30th October; Michael Bercury on 15th October. When cholera broke out on the ship Java in 1833, she was cleared of her stores and every part cleaned, ventilated and fumigated (NAI, CSO RP/1833/T3539).

Death by Drowning

Yesterday, a magisterial inquiry was held by I M Blake, Esq, with reference to the death of a person named John Lynam. It appears that two brothers of deceased (Patrick and Richard) left Goulburn for Lambing Flat, and on Friday were overtaken when near Gunning by the deceased; on Saturday, John started by himself, intending to go to the Flat by way of Jerrawa, and his two brothers continued their journey by the Yass road. On Saturday night they camped near the Chain-of-Ponds, and while at that place a boy came up and informed them that their brother John had been drowned near Jerrawa. They started for the latter place on the following (Sunday) orning, and on reaching there they recognised on the bank of the creek the bridle, saddle, and horse that had belonged to their brother. A search was immediately instituted for the body of the unfortunate man, which was found on Monday at the bottom of a water hole, and the hat that had been worn by deceased was found about half a mil! e further down the creek. The deceased had evidently been accidentally drowned while crossing the creek. - Yass Courier.
